

The Siddha Yogi

Mukhla Singh Sahib Guru-ka Singh Khalsa*

* Columbia, Ohio, USA. Email: guruka_s@sikhnet.com

@ Though written in honour of the Late Yogi Harbhajan Singh Ji Khalsa, the author has kept in mind Guru Nanak's "Siddha Gosht" in SGGS.

He remembers the bright Lord and merges his Soul,
Union with God is his only goal.
He slays the five demons, keeps God clasped to his heart,
Remains fixed in God's love, and is never apart.
He sees the One Lord in the moon and the sun.
He sees God's Light within everyone.
He sees God in the forest. He sees God in his home.
Full of awe... full of wonder... he is never alone.
All his rituals are drowned in singing God's praises,
He dwells on the Name and begs for none else.
By Guru's grace he is blessed with the highest respect.
God removes all his doubts, and unites him with Him.
God lives in his every fiber and limb.
His trance is true freedom and release from the world.
Beyond sloth and desire, anger and pain.
His body and his senses serve him,
And his Way of life is the love of the Name.
Indescribable joy is the food which he eats.
He ever leans on the staff of Truth.
His mood is one of contemplation.
He practices the yoga of God's meditation.
He stills his ego and sings the Lord's praise.
He reflects on the essence of All ... night and day.
He sits in the fearless, timeless place,
And loves to gaze on the playful Lord's face.
