From the day I was born,
Till the day today,
God gave me ample laughter
But still on my lips
Runs a pleading song
..... God, a bit more!

I got my share of friends
Rejoiced in their company
Cherish wonderful memories
But still in my mind
Resides a cute dream
..... God, a bit more!

Many experiences I've had Many books I've read
Many things I've learnt
Many laurels I've got
But my brain, asks again
..... God, a bit more!

Many dresses I've got
Many luxuries abound my life
Many gifts I receive
But still my heart
asks longingly
..... God, a bit more!

We live uncertain years
From the day of its beginning
Till the day of its end
Our life is mysterious
A lot, it lends.
..... still, God, a bit more!

In this wonderful world
We laugh, rejoice & play
It seems an endless relay
And one fine day while Man is breathing his last
..... hopes, God, a bit more!

His dying heart throbs
Body becomes weak
Lips sink inside
Mind runs out of thoughts

His brain seems lost
..... cries, God, a bit more!

While his departing soul gathers courage
Still his heart offers a silent prayer “Lord, u gave wondrous moments of gay, happiness and laughter
But still, please give me
..... God, a bit more!”
